

The Kaleidoscopic Ceilings

The stucco decoration of the ceilings of the ground floor of the three buildings is a kaleidoscope of colours. While the buildings are an impressive display of a mixture of art and academia, the ceilings of different sections, though of the same stucco design, are marked by colour variations. From gates 1-2 of the St. Gabriel Building, the ceiling is dark blue followed by blue ceiling from gates 2-3. The two sections of the St. Michael Building have purple and green ceilings and the last two portions of the St. Raphael Building are in mustard shade and turquoise.
