

ABSTRACT

The main objective of the business is to maximize profit . To meet its objective and run business effectively, the management level requires the right information at the right time in the right form . The present time is an information age, and a computer plays an important role in every business . Thus, a computer is one of the solutions to support the requirements above . This project is an example of applying computer to the business in order to run business effectively . It presents System Development Life Cycle, which is a methodology to structure the application system development process, as well as any subsequent maintenance or enhancement activities into a straight forward and easy-to-use development plan . And this project tries to make a way for the company which runs Multi-Level Marketing in reducing its complexity and getting needed information as much as possible to meet its goals .