

ABSTRACT

A Multimedia Information Provider Co., Ltd. (MIP Co., Ltd.) is a professional out-source company to serve the internal communication system. Its objective is to serve the client company in internal communication system for better effectiveness and efficiency.

A Multimedia Information Distributed System (MIDS) is the main system of MIP Co., Ltd. in order to serve client company. MIDS is located in the most well known public network, Internet for the most flexible access methods. MIDS serves client customer by concerning with business requirements for the internal communication system as more complicated company type, time to distribute information, overlap time in information distribution, the right information to the right person, the easiest format to understand, the most suitable format to collection, and Information security.

MIDS services replace the traditional system, announcement board, legal document, and fax document with the computerized system. The information distributor of client company enter the information to MIDS, which allowed many formats, text, image, sound, and video clips. The client company's user logins to MIDS for access information.

The key benefits for MIDS over the traditional system are to serve the business requirements of the internal communication system, the flexible information access, and the flexible implementation for various types and requirements of client company.