ABSTRACT

This study covers the analysis, design and implementation of a computer information system of the Insurance Office. The scope of the project concerned with the major parts of Multinational Corporation Insurance Information System.

This study uses structured analysis and design techniques to document all activities. Firstly, the existing system is studied and analysed, problems are identified, the new system is designed to solve or minimize the problems and finally, testing and implementing are carried out.

The file structure is designed base on RDB file. A menu driven and form filling screens are designed to suit wide range of users.