

ABSTRACT

This project covers the analysis, design and implementation of the computer information system of C.M.S. Jewelry Manufacturing-co., ltd. the scope of the project covers the casting section and the activities that related to this section.

The study of this project begins with problems definitions and analyze the existing system by using tools such as data flow, The new system can be designed to solve the problem and meet user requirements The problem of the system are spesify in the project such as late on delivery date,back up information incorrect.The system will be in fox pro language run by one Personal Computer.The user must have training for one or two weeks and the error will show up after a while.

This project will help in the information system for Casting and get the better result in the future.