

ABSTRACT

At present, almost of firms and organizations both in the private and public sectors require computer information system for better management and improvement of service functions.

This Veterinary Hospital Information System is developed to assist veterinarians and users to perform their functions more effectively and efficiently. This new system has rapidly and correctly activated the users in operating the business process flow, reducing the redundant workflow and daily tasks, reducing the workforce, and decreasing the human errors.

