

ABSTRACT

Increased competition in the Rice Mill Industries has made the continuous pursuit of greater productivity, lower cost and better customer service a matter of urgency and even survival. The use of modern, computerized inventory management system has proved to be an important part of the race for the competition.

In developing this inventory management system, we used to study existing system and analyze the problems, then design the Inventory management process and map this process to computerize Inventory system.

