

ABSTRACT

A Management Information System is the heart of an organization. To compete effectively in any business the management realizes that it must take full advantage of information Resources.

This report studies about system analysis and design of a finance company which its main income comes from Hire-Purchase business. The report will be divided into 4 parts.

The first part will concern about the company background, objective of the project, scope, output from the project, and the project planning. The second part concerns about the existing system review, Functions of each department and problems of the existing will be identified.

Proposed system will be presented in the third part of the project. They are proposed procedures, user requirements and economic cost comparison.

The last part of the project will be conclusions and recommendations to the organization for the next phase of system analysis and system design .