

ABSTRACT

The idea of the project came to me after an episode of my breakdown. I was lost and can't see things rationally. Later, I came across a phrase in an inspirational speech which actually is quoted from Jesus "Ask and you shall receive, and your joy will be complete." After those words, I began to open myself and interacted with people more. I started to ask for help and listen to their advices and results that they make me to be able to see the world in many more possibility and even also give my friends to have positive reactions.

Also at the same time, there was a releasing game called, "Minecraft" a 3D sandbox game, on computer the game is capable of inspiring people to make any kind of their imagination came true. But its enormous platform makes the experience kind of tiresome if you working alone. So, I invited a few friends in to the game and we had created an amazing world together.

After my own first-hand experience that working together with other people could make such a synergetic result, I wish that our society would be as I had seen. That when you became inspired by something then you keep on inspiring people with positive actions and it started to improve the society you're in. And I believe that in this way with a change of a person could change the world for a better place if we keep on the inspiring one another. And that became my inspiration for my animation.

And since the game "Minecraft" had inspired me to the project, I decided to present my concept in 3D animations, so I could recreate the experience that I got from the game and believe that the similar art and style would inspire people in the same I had.
